

Magic Camp 2009 - Testimonials

I cannot begin to tell you what I got out of spending the day working with the girls, it was an amazing experience. When they called STOP at 4 pm, I couldn't believe it was that late. There is something so special in seeing a young girl "get it", that moment when it clicks on how to do the next step. Watching them admire what they created and finding they can do pretty much anything with a little assistance gives our own self esteem a huge boost.

I really enjoyed yesterday, assisting with the tool boxes. When I was walking over to look at the shed the guy from AGC, whose name I don't remember, said he'd take those nine girls over his guys any day. He was so impressed. That says a lot for the guidance those girls have received. I remember looking at the drywall and thinking it looked better than those weekend warriors on HGTV.

Thanks for the plaque, certificates, and shirt. I can't wait to look up the Pink Box on the internet. I hope we will continue to be able to support MAGIC Camp every year. Oh, and the highlight of the toolboxes was when one girl used the wrong nail gun and nailed her tray to the work table. Every one had a good laugh, and I told her I was sure she'd never make that mistake again.

One girl said her toolbox was for sale and then decided to give it to her dad. Good choice. But it got me thinking that if those girls were able to make extra toolboxes or birdhouses I bet there are some NAWIC sisters (me) who would love to buy them.
